

Join with Us in Our Efforts to End Human Trafficking

The Center for Justice & Reconciliation (CJR) at Point Loma Nazarene University (PLNU) is deeply committed to and involved in the movement to end human trafficking. We are here to help you learn more and believe that each one of us has a place in this work. We'd love to help you get more connected to what we are doing. If you would like to join us in this important effort, see below for program details and contact information.

The Beauty for Ashes Scholarship Fund

full cost of tuition for each student. The Scholarship currently supports four full-time students who are pursuing their degrees at PLNU, with a fifth student accepted for August 2017. The scholarship is 100% funded by donors. We have a program to help churches support the fund by engaging their congregations. Private donors are also needed to help us continue to support our students and welcome future students.

HUMAN TRAFFICKING HT-RADAR Research and Data Advisory Roundtable

The Human Trafficking and Data Advisory Roundtable (HT-RADAR) was founded by CJR Director, Dr. Jamie Gates, and is now a San Diego County funded initiative to gather researchers and data analysts who have skills and interests related to human trafficking. This regional effort is organized and facilitated by the CJR and engages researchers all over the country. We facilitate the sharing of data, promote human trafficking research, implement ongoing research and impact decision making in the region and beyond. An annual research conference is held in February of each year.

kNow MORE is a student-centered, drama-based human trafficking awareness and prevention curriculum for schools and communities. Based on the latest research and developed in collaboration with educators and experts, the curriculum helps young people recognize the red flags and vulnerabilities of being targeted for recruitment into sex trafficking. Led by peers through an interactive experience, the purpose of kNow MORE is to prevent future victims and to identify current youth at risk. Schools and communities interested in having kNow MORE programming can contact:

San Diego Churches Against Trafficking

is a network of multi-denominational churches, sponsored by PLNU, that gather together every other month. Our mission is to educate, raise awareness, and ignite hearts around the issues of local human trafficking, as well as provide opportunities for engagement. We serve various trafficking victims' shelters and organizations in San Diego with resources and volunteers from our congregations.
